Feb. 29, 1928.

Mrs. Mollie Collier,
2708 Ethel Street,
Waco, Texas.

Dear Cousin Mollie:

Enclosed find newspaper clipping showing you of Durward's new business connection. This is a 33,000 spindle cotton mill, employing about 800 to 1,000 people.

This is why I have been writing all of my Texas relatives to educate their children regardless of what it cost. An education now is very cheap if the child only has the pluck to stick.

This proposition will pay Durward a salary of approximately $25,000.00 per year besides the earnings that might come on the interest that he and I have in the business.

I haven't time to write more, and with good wishes and love to all the family, I beg to remain

Yours very sincerely,

JCC:S

P. S. Advise all the Texas Colliers that have boys to educate them and get them away from the farm. High powered fertilizers and improved machinery will make the farm very unprofitable in the future---more than it has in the past.

Enc.